ROYALTY TAXES MUST BE REDUCED, IF MINING IS TO PROSPER

POINTS TO DECREASED MINING IN STATE UNDER PRESENT CONDITIONS

St. Paul, Jan. 22.—(UP)—Prohibitive taxes on mining property and importation of ore from other districts and foreign countries may sound the death knell of the northern Minnesota mining industry unless relief is granted, the house interim committee on indebtedness and taxes was informed here late today. Representatives E. P. Scallon, of Crosby; Hitchcock, Hibbing; J. G.

HON. EDWARD P. SCALLON
Representative at Large of Crow Wing and Morrison Counties

Armon, member of the tax commission, and Fred Vibert, Cloquet, secretary of the Arrowhead Association, declared that royalty taxes must soon be reduced if the mining industry is to prosper.

The champions of the mine cause pointed to the decrease in the number of operations during recent years, explained the injurious effect of large ore importations from Chile and other countries, and prophesied that the operators would seek other fields unless the taxes were reduced.

WEST CONFIRMED AS SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR

WILL SUCCEED DR. HUBERT
WORK IN THE COOLIDGE CABINET

SENATE DECIDES BY SECRET
ROLL CALL AFTER LONG,
BITTER FIGHT

Washington, Jan. 22.—(UP)—Roy O. West, Chicago attorney, today stood confirmed as secretary of interior to succeed Dr. Hubert Work in the Coolidge cabinet.

Confirmation of the nomination came yesterday from a secret roll call by the senate despite a long and bitter fight, the last move of the opposition being their twice defeated attempts to have the roll call public. The vote was 54 to 27.

The stubborn opposition to West came from independents in both the republican and democratic parties because of West's close association in private life with Samuel Insull, Chicago public utilities magnate. Several Insull applications for power sites are now being considered by the federal power commission and the opposition argued West, as secretary of interior, would be a member of that body.

West was selected by President Coolidge to take the interior portfolio after Dr. Work resigned last fall to become chairman of the republican national committee. Immediately there were rumblings of protest from those legislators who had inaugurated a fight against the "power trust" at a previous session of congress.

When the senate convened for the short session West's appointment was one of the first submitted. It was referred to the public lands committee where the fight was carried into the open with Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, leading the opposition.

West's term will expire March 4 with the rest of the Coolidge administration and it is understood he is not a candidate for re-appointment.

Battle Over State Highway Program, 4 Cent Tax on Gasoline Offered in the Legislature

IS COUNTER PROPOSAL TO BOND ISSUE

OTHER IMPORTANT BILLS INCLUDE ERECTION OF STATE OFFICE BUILDING

BILLS TO LICENSE TEACHERS; TO REPEAL PREFERENCE ACT, ETC.

St. Paul, Jan. 22.—(UP)—The battle in the Minnesota legislature over a state highway program was drawn into the open today after bills had been introduced in both branches which would provide for a 4-cent tax on gasoline. The tax is now two cents.

The measures offered as counter-proposals to the $20,000,000 highway bond issue, suggested by Commissioner C. M. Babcock, and others, were but two of the 52 bills introduced in the brief sessions Monday night.

Other important bills dropped into the hoppers included two for the erection of a new state office building; a bill to license teachers; a house bill to repeal the preference act; and a sterilization bill.

In addition to the mass of proposed legislation August Saggan, Ceylon, was administered the oath as senator from Martin and Watonwan counties to fill the vacancy made by the death of Frank A. Day, Fairmont publisher. Saggan was chosen senator by the two counties in a special election last Tuesday.

Representatives Dahl, Rohne and others introduced the gas tax increase bill in the house while Senators Peterson and Larson brought forth an identical measure in the senate.

Representative Rohne declared that the two-cent increase would undoubtedly provide sufficient funds for a consistent highway program without either the proposed $20,000,000 bond issue, or the county reimbursement bonds, the second of which were suggested by Governor Theodore Christianson in his biennial legislative message.

The office building bill introduced in both houses by rural members led by Representative Morton and Senator Widell called for expenditures ranging up to $1,250,000, including proceeds from the sale of the old capitol.

Teachers' license bills offered in the senate by Senator Thwing and in the house by Rep. Denning would provide that licenses would be granted upon a $5 fee only to those "physically competent and morally fit" and could be revoked for good cause by the board of education. Present holders of certificates would be permitted licenses without fees. Rep. J. Russell Seitzer, St. Paul, brought out the bill which would repeal the preference act. This act passed in 1925 requires that all cut stone used in the construction of state buildings must be fabricated in Minnesota. Sweitzer claimed that the act was unjust and worked to the disadvantage of local quarries.

The eugenics sterilization bill offered by Senators Roepke, McCubrey and W. B. Anderson would provide for the creation of a state director of eugenics with power to bring about the sterilization of persons deemed unfit to propagate their kind. Consent for the action would have first to be gained of the spouse or legal guardian.

WEMPLE, ENGINEER OF LINCOLN FUNERAL TRAIN, PASSES AWAY

Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 22.—(UP)—A. J. Wemple, engineer of the funeral train of Abraham Lincoln, and said to be the oldest locomotive engineer in America, is dead here at the age of 92.

REMOVAL TO SEA AIR IS CONSIDERED AS ADVANTAGEOUS

London, Jan. 22.—(UP)—King George has advanced so far in recovery from his illness that his doctors are considering plans for moving him to a better climate.

"We feel that the time is approaching when his majesty's removal to the sea air will be advantageous," said an official bulletin issued by the royal physicians today.

It was announced officially that a house belonging to Sir Arthur Du Cros at Bognor, Sussex, on the south coast of England, had been selected for the king's convalescence.

The bulletin said: "The king had a quiet night. His temperature now has remained normal for many days. With returning appetite, the amount of nourishment is adequate. Although the general strength shows improvement, there is so far no appreciable increase in weight."

brought out the bill which would repeal the preference act. This act passed in 1925 requires that all cut stone used in the construction of state buildings must be fabricated in Minnesota. Sweitzer claimed that the act was unjust and worked to the disadvantage of local quarries.

STEAM ROLLER IS POISED NEAR GOV. JOHNSTON

OKLAHOMAN EXECUTIVE SUSPENDED BY HIS STATE SENATE

BODY THEN RECESSES AS COURT OF IMPEACHMENT TO JAN. 25

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 22.—(UP)—The steam roller that is expected to crush the gubernatorial life of Governor Henry S. Johnston, had halted momentarily today before gathering momentum for the last charge.

Suspending Governor Johnston late yesterday by the one-sided vote of 38 to 5, the senate then recessed as a court of impeachment until January 25. The court of impeachment set January 28 as the day for the governor's appearance to answer impeachment charges voted by the house and accepted by the senate.

Between now and the time when Johnston appears, attorneys for both the prosecution and the defense will busy themselves with preparations for the trial.

The overwhelming vote of the senate in accepting the impeachment charges shows that the Johnston forces must be well prepared with arguments to refute the charges.

PREPARES FOR ENTRY TO LAND OF FLOWERS AND SUNSHINE

TO GO TO FLORIDA WHICH RECENTLY SHOWED APPRECIATION IN VOTES

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard President-elect Hoover's Special Train Enroute to Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 22.—President-elect Hoover changed into a lighter weight suit today, wore a vacation smile, ate strawberries for breakfast and otherwise prepared for his entry into the land of flowers and sunshine which recently showed its warmth of feeling toward him practically in votes.

The entry promises to be a triumphal one perhaps recalling to the president-elect some of the welcomes on his campaign tour and on the more recent trip to South America, a summer-time land when he was there.

The crack engine of the Atlantic Coast Line drew its trail of eight cars across the Florida line early this morning, heading straight for Miami, which it is scheduled to reach at two o'clock this afternoon.

The president-elect is taking advantage of the trip to rest, dismissing political cares from his mind as far as possible for the duration of the journey, brief though that is.

When his thought does take a political turn, however, Chairman Work of the national committee is on hand for any inquiries. The national chairman is expected to remain about a week in Miami Beach.

Miami is ready to welcome the country's next president. Governor Dole will be on hand at Miami and Hoover will witness a parade through Miami and Miami Beach in which all parts of Florida will be represented.

The city will be decorated gaily with a blending of Pan-American colors. Reminiscent of the recent Latin-American tour, he will receive the keys of Miami and an invitation to fish in Florida waters in the form of a fishing outfit.

The president-elect had no engagements scheduled for today. He expected to go to the J. C. Penney estate at Belle Isle, where he and Mrs. Hoover's niece, Miss Janet Large, will live after the welcoming ceremonies, spending the rest of the day there quietly, becoming acclimated to the place which will be his home for about a month.

The trip southward, which took him into three of the southern states that he carried is a contrast to his campaign trips. A kindness of feeling and frequent reminders of his victory came from the small groups at the brief stops made on the way south.

"Mr. Hoover, please say something to us down here—we've been dying to hear from you," was an insistent appeal at Rockmount, N. C.

Hoover grinned broadly. He did not make a speech, but leaned over the rail of the back platform, shaking hands and talking with those in the crowd.

"I was an elector, Mr. Hoover," one said.

"You voted twice for me, then," the president-elect retorted. And there was a quick laughing nod.

Hoover is expected to rest the first few days in Florida with a minimum of callers, before resuming consideration of his cabinet, administration plans and the writing of his inauguration address.

SNOW FALLING NOW IN MANY SECTIONS HERE

CHANGE AT NIGHTFALL TO BITTER NORTHWEST WINDS

TEMPERATURES EXPECTED TO BRING ON SUB-ZERO POINTS

St. Paul, Jan. 22.—(UP)—Medicine Hat and Qu-Appelle, Canada, the birthplaces of the great American storms, today were prepared to present to the northwest another young blizzard.

Snow was already falling early today in many quarters but it was carried in by east winds and accompanied by comfortable temperatures, which weather men said would be changed before nightfall to bitter northwest winds and sub-zero weather.

The impending storm was said to be the same experienced Sunday and Monday in southern Canada. Temperatures are expected to fall to five degrees below zero by nightfall.

Today's snow had slowed down train schedules, several trains having been reported from five to 30 minutes late. Bus service, however, continued unhampered but it was likely that if the snow continued some trips would be cancelled.

INTERURBAN CAR CRASH KILLS SEVERAL

Bellevue, O., Jan. 22.—(UP)—Several persons were reported to have been killed or injured when an interurban car crashed into a passenger bus near here this afternoon. Meager reports said several persons were killed.

Bellevue, O., Jan. 22.—(UP)—Twenty-four persons were killed when an interurban car, speeding through a snowstorm, crashed into a Pittsburgh-Detroit Greyhound bus near here today.

An undetermined number were injured. The traction car, scheduled as an express, was traveling at a high rate of speed.

Motorman John Schuyler's vision apparently was obscured by the storm and he failed to see the bus in time to avoid the crash.

The bus, one of the latest giant type, was ripped in two.

Every passenger aboard the bus was killed.

The driver, Ed Butler of Cleveland, was believed fatally injured.

As the interurban struck the bus, it left the rails and came down on top of the vehicle.

The scene was ghastly.

Mangled bodies were crushed into the tangled wreckage.

DR. LITTLE RESIGNS AS HEAD OF UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN TODAY

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 22.—(UP)—The resignation of Dr. Clarence Cook Little as president of the University of Michigan was the center of heated debate among students, faculty members and citizens of Ann Arbor today.

Dr. Little's resignation, motivated by principles he would uphold, "be they right or wrong," was accepted unanimously by the board of regents last night. The board immediately adopted a resolution expressing regret at the president's action.

Dr. Little refused to make any statement as to his future plan. He admitted frankly "I haven't a job in sight."

G. BERNARD SHAW COMPLETES PLAY, "THE APPLE CART"

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 22.—(UP)—George Bernard Shaw has completed a new play which he described as "an ultra-modern political play, as unlike 'St. John' as anything can be." The play, "The Apple Cart," will be produced at the Malvern theater festival in August, the Birmingham Repertory company announced.

One of two passenger train locomotives derailed near Cedar Rapids, Iowa, while trying to plow through heavy snowdrifts. Recent blizzards in that state caused many accidents, even on paved highways.

"I was an elector, Mr. Hoover," one said.

"You voted twice for me, then," the president-elect retorted. And there was a quick laughing nod.

Hoover is expected to rest the first few days in Florida with a minimum of callers, before resuming consideration of his cabinet, administration plans and the writing of his inauguration address.

SNOW FALLING NOW IN MANY SECTIONS HERE

CHANGE AT NIGHTFALL TO BITTER NORTHWEST WINDS

TEMPERATURES EXPECTED TO BRING ON SUB-ZERO POINTS

St. Paul, Jan. 22.—(UP)—Medicine Hat and Qu-Appelle, Canada, the birthplaces of the great American storms, today were prepared to present to the northwest another young blizzard.

Snow was already falling early today in many quarters but it was carried in by east winds and accompanied by comfortable temperatures, which weather men said would be changed before nightfall to bitter northwest winds and sub-zero weather.

The impending storm was said to be the same experienced Sunday and Monday in southern Canada. Temperatures are expected to fall to five degrees below zero by nightfall.

Today's snow had slowed down train schedules, several trains having been reported from five to 30 minutes late. Bus service, however, continued unhampered but it was likely that if the snow continued some trips would be cancelled.

INTERURBAN CAR CRASH KILLS SEVERAL

Bellevue, O., Jan. 22.—(UP)—Several persons were reported to have been killed or injured when an interurban car crashed into a passenger bus near here this afternoon. Meager reports said several persons were killed.

Bellevue, O., Jan. 22.—(UP)—Twenty-four persons were killed when an interurban car, speeding through a snowstorm, crashed into a Pittsburgh-Greyhound bus near here today.

An undetermined number were injured.

The traction car, scheduled as an express, was traveling at a high rate of speed.

Motorman John Schuyler's vision apparently was obscured by the storm and he failed to see the bus in time to avoid the crash.

The bus, one of the latest giant type, was ripped in two.

Every passenger aboard the bus was killed.

The driver, Ed Butler of Cleveland, was believed fatally injured.

As the interurban struck the bus, it left the rails and came down on top of the vehicle.

The scene was ghastly. Mangled bodies were crushed into the tangled wreckage.

DR. LITTLE RESIGNS AS HEAD OF UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN TODAY

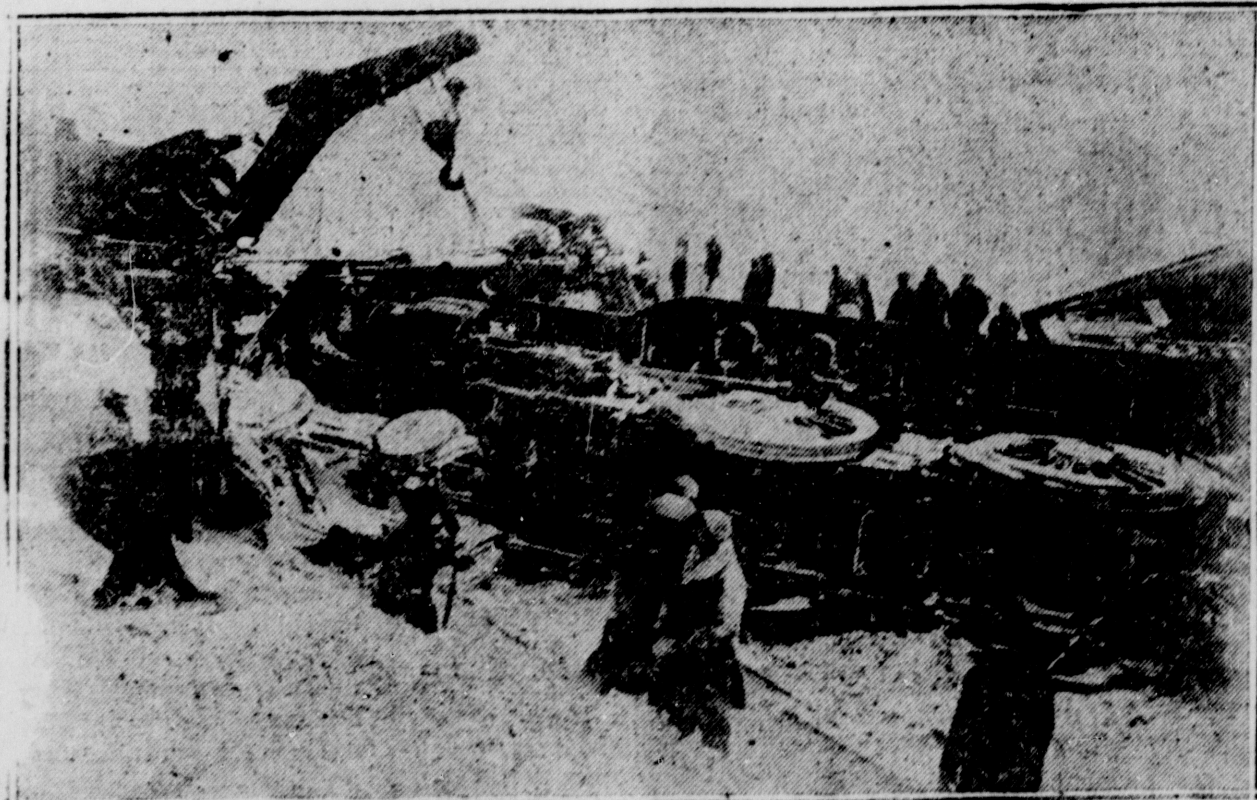

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 22.—(UP)—The resignation of Dr. Clarence Cook Little as president of the University of Michigan was the center of heated debate among students, faculty members and citizens of Ann Arbor today.

Dr. Little's resignation, motivated by principles he would uphold, "be they right or wrong," was accepted unanimously by the board of regents last night. The board immediately adopted a resolution expressing regret at the president's action.

Dr. Little refused to make any statement as to his future plan. He admitted frankly "I haven't a job in sight."

G. BERNARD SHAW COMPLETES PLAY, "THE APPLE CART"

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 22.—(UP)—George Bernard Shaw has completed a new play which he described as "an ultra-modern political play, as unlike 'St. John' as anything can be." The play, "The Apple Cart," will be produced at the Malvern theater festival in August, the Birmingham Repertory company announced.

One of two passenger train locomotives derailed near Cedar Rapids, Iowa, while trying to plow through heavy snowdrifts. Recent blizzards in that state caused many accidents, even on paved highways.

Inset, Smith's 19-year-old widow. (International Newsreel)

SUFFERS 10 YEARS; THEN TOOK SARGON

Mrs. Malcott Recommends Sargon Because It Proved Its Worth in Her Case

"Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills are the most wonderful medicines I have ever used. I say this because they have brought back my health after I had been trying for ten years to find something that would relieve me of my suffering. My principal trouble was with my liver, for my complexion was always sallow and I often said my color was as yellow as gold. I believe my entire system was filled with poison, resulting from chronic constipation and liver trouble. I became dreadfully nervous. I did not sleep well and was losing my strength and energy rapidly.

"I also suffered terribly with intestinal indigestion and had always to be careful about my diet, but I would suffer with indigestion just the same. Gas would form and extend up around my heart and cause severe palpitation. I also had severe pains in my abdomen. These attacks would generally come on after meal time. Pains in my chest and shoulder also bothered me a great deal, and I was in a badly run-down and weakened condition.

"After taking two bottles of Sargon and one bottle of Sargon Soft Mass Pills I noticed a remarkable improvement in my condition. My appetite is splendid. I can now digest and assimilate food. I hadn't dared touch before in months. I no longer suffer from those indigestion spells but the greatest blessing of all has been the relief from constipation from which I suffered for so many years. My complexion is now clear and healthy. I have gained some weight and feel greatly strengthened in every way.

"The Sargon Soft Mass Pills are wonderful. They are so gentle and yet so thorough and cause no bad after effects whatever."

The above statement was made by Mrs. Alexander Malcott, 1405 West 6th Street, Oklahoma City. Mrs. Malcott is a member of St. Luke's Methodist church and is highly respected by a large circle of friends.

Sargon may be obtained in Brainerd from H. P. Dunn; and in Pequot from A. S. Rasmussen. —Adv.

Mrs. Malcott Recommends Sargon Because It Proved Its Worth in Her Case

"Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills are the most wonderful medicines I have ever used. I say this because they have brought back my health after I had been trying for ten years to find something that would relieve me of my suffering. My principal trouble was with my liver, for my complexion was always sallow and I often said my color was as yellow as gold. I believe my entire system was filled with poison, resulting from chronic constipation and liver trouble. I became dreadfully nervous. I did not sleep well and was losing my strength and energy rapidly.

"I also suffered terribly with intestinal indigestion and had always to be careful about my diet, but I would suffer with indigestion just the same. Gas would form and extend up around my heart and cause severe palpitation. I also had severe pains in my abdomen. These attacks would generally come on after meal time. Pains in my chest and shoulder also bothered me a great deal, and I was in a badly run-down and weakened condition.

"After taking two bottles of Sargon and one bottle of Sargon Soft Mass Pills I noticed a remarkable improvement in my condition. My appetite is splendid. I can now digest and assimilate food I hadn't dared touch before in months. I no longer suffer from those indigestion spells but the greatest blessing of all has been the relief from constipation from which I suffered for so many years. My complexion is now clear and healthy. I have gained some weight and feel greatly strengthened in every way.

"The Sargon Soft Mass Pills are wonderful. They are so gentle and yet so thorough and cause no bad after effects whatever."

The above statement was made by Mrs. Alexander Malcott, 1405 West 6th Street, Oklahoma City. Mrs. Malcott is a member of St. Luke's Methodist church and is highly respected by a large circle of friends.

Sargon may be obtained in Brainerd from H. P. Dunn; and in Pequot from A. S. Rasmussen.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO Irene Robeline it was a painful duty to sit up at the vigil of Lilith Holden. The story of Lilith's capture of handsome Guinn Holden, young minister of the Texas town, as told by Mattie Anson, village gossip, was like stabs with a knife. Lilith was the prettiest girl in town. Her coquetry didn't stop at the church, but almost before she knew it she had married Holden. A year later, with the birth of a child, Lilith died. Irene's heart aches for Holden, who attempts to care for the infant with the aid of a colored servant. The minister comes to her for advice, never realizing Irene's passion for him. Will Lundy, town doctor, in love with Irene, is equally ignorant of her secret. Even Mattie Anson who, hints that it is time for Irene to marry Lundy, is deceived. But when Lundy asserts his love Irene rejects him and determines the more to win Holden. She learns the care of babies so as to be of help to him, for his whole life is wrapped up in the pretty child in whom he sees the dead Lilith.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

THE baby looked exactly as her mother must have looked when she was little—with the same silky, pale-gold hair, that now began to curl in adorable duck tails at the back of her neck and at her temples; the same eyes, big and lovely, of a clear blue, not like the indeterminate color that most infants show; and her long, fringed eyelashes were beginning to take on beauty. Her skin was incredibly white, and her round cheeks were pink as peach blooms. She had a diverting coquetry that made Art Rakestraw her slave, and that won most masculine beholders, especially her father. She would lay a soft hand on a visitor's cheek, her eyes would dance mischief, and she would bounce and gurgle in glee.

She was a friendly little soul in her amiable moods, and she liked all the congregation. But she showed preference for the men, and was always delighted when the deacons had their meeting at the parsonage. She was fonder of the deacons than of Ladies' Aids, and she found them in general not only more attentive to her, but more amenable to her demands.

Art Rakestraw would steal her from her go-cart, and give her all sorts of things to eat. It took insults from the Ladies' Aids to stop him from regaling her with all-day suckers, and Irene came up just in time one day to snatch a hot tamale from Lilith's eager fist.

As Lilith's lip quivered and she set up a wail, Irene caught her to her heart, murmuring the inconsequentialities that women utter over babies.

The scene took place in front of Irene's house and the minister, hearing the disturbance, rushed out to rescue his child.

"Who's abusing my baby?" he asked in polite but anxious tones. Art looked in apprehension at Irene.

"Your daughter was crying for hot tamales," she told Guinn. "We suggested that she wait a few years, but she doesn't like waiting."

"I see." He stood looking down at Irene, with Lilith snuggled in her arms. "Life isn't so simple, my daughter, that you can have everything you cry for."

"Some of us don't get our hot tamales even if we wait," said Art. "And sometimes when we get 'em, we find they're cold, and we don't care for 'em."

"And maybe somebody else

gobbles 'em up and leaves us nothing but the husks." Art was rather proud of his metaphor and willing to pursue it.

Guinn Holden smiled his humorous, winning smile. "That's a masculine opinion. Now what do you women think about it, Miss Irene?"

"Maybe the tamale is worth waiting for, and maybe even the husk is better than a substitute." Her eyes were merry, and she spoke lightly, but the hand that smoothed Lilith's coat was tremulous. Lilith suddenly in her arms and laid a hand like a white butterfly on Irene's cheek, in a fugitive, fluttering caress, and then, with quish coquetry, she squirmed forward, nolding out imperious hands to her father.

He snatched her up in delight, and from the vantage of his shoulders she gurgled flirtatiously at Art Rakestraw.

"Now ain't she the beatifying young-un you ever saw?" that admirer chuckled.

"She suits me exactly," her father conceded.

The smiling tenderness in his eyes, the caress in his voice hurt Irene indescribably. He simply didn't know that anyone else existed in the world except that baby—at least, in a personal relation to him, she told herself hotly. And then she quivered with shame to think she was jealous of a baby—a little, motherless thing!

Irene showed herself so learned in infant physiology and psychology that the minister turned to her more and more as a source of advice, but he didn't seem to recognize her as an attractive woman. She might as well be a compendium of advice to young mothers for all the eyes this wifeless young father had. Her sense of humor ridiculed her, but she went on with her researches. And she found them useful from time to time. There was the occasion of Lilith's habit of sucking her thumb, for instance.

Her father thought it a cunning trick, but Irene pointed out to him the dangers. She made little thumb caps for her and put them on in person, with an anxious father inspecting the job. But Lilith chewed at them like a puppy and soon got them off. Then Irene recommended quinine—she herself having been nurtured in a rather Spartan fashion that gave thought more to what was good for babies than for what babies preferred.

Lilith gave a roar of protest. Her dotting father couldn't help reflecting a shade of her resentment. It seemed to Irene that he blamed her for wounding his child's feelings. He had been at ease concerning the dangers before and now he was all stirred up about it, for it was a serious business to raise an issue with Lilith.

Irene only said, "Any woman will tell you it's bad for a baby to suck her thumb." Mouth breathing, adenoids, lips and jawbones out of shape, and so forth. The Ladies' Aid backed her in a body, with such vehemence and such massed experience that in the end Lilith had to give up her habit.

"I thought for a while he was going to bring the matter up in Deacons' Meeting and set the men against the women," sniffed Mattie Anson. "Ain't men the living lunatics?"

Art Rakestraw was disgusted over the discipline. "Human beings ought to be let to take what enjoyment they can out of this world," he grumbled to Jane. "I'd let 'em do what they wanted to, too, so long as it didn't hurt them or others," was conceded.

When Lilith was about six months old she sickened mysteriously. Guinn summoned Irene in haste for consultation, and she cross-examined Aunt Viny.

"What have you been feeding her?"

The turbaned head tossed in independence. "Nothing but what's all right for her."

"What?" probed the intruder.

Aunt Viny mumbled in her throat.

Guinn stood by the bed where Lilith was tossing restlessly, his arms folded, his brow corrugated in an anxious frown.

"You must have been giving her something solid," went on Irene, with eyes fixed accusingly on Aunt Viny.

"Naw, ma'am." But the black face turned a frightened ash and a guilty look was in her eyes.

Irene changed her tone, using guile to trap the dorky. "What was it then, Aunt Viny?" she asked casually.

"Nothing but some black-eyed peas," she admitted grudgingly.

"Black-eyed peas?" Irene's tone could have been no more horrified if Aunt Viny had said cholera germs or arsenic.

The minister looked wordless profanity.

Aunt Viny hastened to explain, to exculpate herself. "She looked so cute pickin' 'em up one at a time, in her fingers."

The father raised hands in horror.

"Aunt Viny, you absolutely must not give that baby anything but what the doctor prescribes for her," Irene ordered. "Don't you know your liable to kill her? And if she died they could try you for murder?"

The black face grew more ashy, and the whites of the eyes lurled more. "Good Lawd a massy! Who ever heard so much talk about a few black-eyed peas? I been seen' little niggers eat 'em always, come they get this old. An' eat anything else they like 'em."

"We know our Luckies That's how we stay slender"

EVERY woman who fears overweight finds keen interest in new-day and common-sense ways to keep a slender, fashionable figure. Overweight must be avoided. "Better to light a Lucky whenever you crave fattening sweets."

Toasting does it. Toasting develops and improves the flavor of the world's finest tobaccos. Lucky Strike satisfies the longing for things that make you fat, without interfering with a normal appetite for healthful foods. That's why Luckies are good to smoke. Toasting makes Lucky Strike the healthy cigarette for you to smoke.

Many men who carefully watch their health discovered this years ago. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not slow up their physical vigor—prominent athletes have gone on record that this is so. They know that 20,679 physicians have stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO Irene Robeline it was a painful duty to sit up at the vigil of Lilith Holden. The story of Lilith's capture of handsome Guinn Holden, young minister of the Texas town, as told by Mattie Anson, village gossip, was like stabs with a knife. Lilith was the prettiest girl in town. Her coquetry didn't stop at the church, but almost before she knew it she had married Holden. A year later, with the birth of a child, Lilith died. Irene's heart aches for Holden, who attempts to care for the infant with the aid of a colored servant. The minister comes to her for advice, never realizing Irene's passion for him. Will Lundy, town doctor, in love with Irene, is equally ignorant of her secret. Even Mattie Anson who, hints that it is time for Irene to marry Lundy, is deceived. But when Lundy asserts his love Irene rejects him and determines the move to win Holden. She learns the care of babies so as to be of help to him, for his whole life is wrapped up in the pretty child in whom he sees the dead Lilith.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

THE baby looked exactly as her mother must have looked when she was little—with the same silky, pale-gold hair, that now began to curl in adorable duck tails at the back of her neck and at her temples; the same eyes, big and lovely, of a clear blue, not like the indeterminate color that most infants show; and her long, fringed eyelashes were beginning to take on beauty. Her skin was incredibly white, and her round cheeks were pink as peach blossoms. She had a diverting coquetry that made Art Rakestraw her slave, and that won most masculine beholders, especially her father. She would lay a soft hand on a visitor's cheek, her eyes would dance mischief, and she would bounce and gurgle in glee.

She was a friendly little soul in her amiable moods, and she liked all the congregation. But she showed preference for the men, and was always delighted when the deacons had their meeting at the parsonage. She was fonder of the deacons than of Ladies' Aids, and she found them in general not only more attentive to her, but more amenable to her demands. Art Rakestraw would steal her from her go-cart and give her all sorts of things to eat. It took insults from the Ladies' Aids to stop him from regaling her with all-day suckers, and Irene came up just in time one day to snatch a hot tamale from Lilith's eager fist. As Lilith's lip quivered and she set up a wail, Irene caught her to her heart, murmuring the inconsequentialities that women utter over babies.

The scene took place in front of Irene's house and the minister, hearing the disturbance, rushed out to rescue his child.

"Who's abusing my baby?" he asked in polite but anxious tones. Art looked in apprehension at Irene.

"Your daughter was crying for hot tamales," she told Guinn. "We suggested that she wait a few years, but she doesn't like waiting."

"I see." He stood looking down at Irene, with Lilith snuggled in her arms. "Life isn't so simple, my daughter, that you can have everything you cry for."

"Some of us don't get our hot tamales even if we wait," said Art. "And sometimes when we get 'em, we find they're cold, and we don't care for 'em."

"And maybe somebody else

gobbles 'em up and leaves us nothing but the husks." Art was rather proud of his metaphor and willing to pursue it.

Guinn Holden smiled his humorous, winning smile. "That's a masculine opinion. Now what do you women think about it, Miss Irene?"

"Maybe the tamale is worth waiting for, and maybe even the husk is better than a substitute." Her eyes were merry, and she spoke lightly, but the hand that smoothed Lilith's coat was tremulous. Lilith twisted suddenly in her arms and laid a hand like a white butterfly on Irene's cheek, in a fugitive, fluttering caress, and then, with ogish coquetry, she squirmed forward, nuzzling out imperious hands to her father.

He snatched her up in delight, and from the vantage of his shoulders she gurgled flirtatiously at Art Rakestraw.

"Now ain't she the beatifist young'un you ever saw?" that admirer chuckled.

"She suits me exactly," her father conceded. The smiling tenderness in his eyes, the caress in his voice hurt Irene indescribably. He simply didn't know that anyone else existed in the world except that baby—at least, in a personal relation to him, she told herself hotly. And then she quivered with shame to think she was jealous of a baby—a little, motherless thing!

Irene showed herself so learned in infant physiology and psychology that the minister turned to her more and more as a source of advice, but he didn't seem to recognize her as an attractive woman. She might as well be a compendium of advice to young mothers for all the eyes this wifeless young father had. Her sense of humor ridiculed her, but she went on with her researches. And she found them useful from time to time. There was the occasion of Lilith's habit of sucking her thumb, for instance.

Her father thought it a cunning trick, but Irene pointed out to him the dangers. She made little thumb caps for her and put them on in person, with an anxious father inspecting the job. But Lilith chewed at them like a puppy and soon got them off. Then Irene recommended quinine—she herself having been nurtured in a rather Spartan fashion that gave thought more to what was good for babies than for what babies preferred.

Lilith gave a roar of protest. Her doting father couldn't help reflecting a shade of her resentment. It seemed to Irene that he blamed her for wounding his child's feelings. He had been at ease concerning the dangers before and now he was all stirred up about it, for it was a serious business to raise an issue with Lilith.

Irene only said, "Any woman will tell you it's bad for a baby to suck her thumb." Mouth breathing, adenoids, lips and jawbones out of shape, and so forth.

The Ladies' Aid backed her in a body, with such vehemence and such massed experience that in the end Lilith had to give up her habit.

"I thought for a while he was going to bring the matter up in Deacons' Meeting and set the men against the women," sniffed Mattie Anson. "Ain't men the living lunatics?"

Art Rakestraw was disgruntled over the discipline. "Human beings ought to be let to take what enjoyment they can out of this world," he grumbled to Jane.

"I'd let 'em do what they wanted to, too, so long as it didn't hurt them or others," was conceded.

When Lilith was about six months old she sickened mysteriously. Guinn summoned Irene in haste for consultation, and she cross-examined Aunt Viny. "What have you been feeding her?"

The turbaned head tossed in independence. "Nothing but what's all right for her."

"What?" probed the intruder. Aunt Viny mumbled in her throat.

Guinn stood by the bed where Lilith was tossing restlessly, his arms folded, his brow corrugated in an anxious frown. "You must have been giving her something solid," went on Irene, with eyes fixed accusingly on Aunt Viny.

"Now, ma'am." But the black face turned a frightened ash and a guilty look was in her eyes. Irene changed her tone, using guile to trap the dorky. "What was it then, Aunt Viny?" she asked casually.

"Nothing but some black-eyed peas," she admitted grudgingly. "Black-eyed peas?" Irene's tone could have been no more horrified if Aunt Viny had said cholera germs or arsenic.

The minister looked wordless profanity. Aunt Viny hastened to explain, to exculpate herself. "She looked so cute pickin' 'em up one at a time, in her fingers."

The father raised hands in horror. "Aunt Viny, you absolutely must not give that baby anything but what the doctor prescribes for her," Irene ordered. "Don't you know your liable to kill her? And if she died they could try you for murder?"

The black face grew more ashy, and the whites of the eyes bulged more. "Good Lawd a mussy! Who ever heard so much talk about a few black-eyed peas? I been seein' little niggers eat 'em always, come they got this old. An' eat anything else they kin git to."

COMPULSORY INSURANCE FOR DRIVERS

ONE of the means advanced for promotion of street and highway safety is compulsory liability insurance for motorists. The idea is fairly new and has been given a limited trial. Yet it seems to be attracting increased attention and its merits may be further tested. In advocating the plan for the District of Columbia Representative Treadway of Massachusetts declared it had been or was being given consideration in 44 states. It has been in operation 18 months in Massachusetts, and according to officials of that state, it was brought out at the hearing on the bill, the plan has been working satisfactorily.

It is argued that the system offers protection for victims of traffic accidents or members of their families, in case of fatalities; that it tends to weed out the reckless and incompetent drivers, who are denied insurance, and that it offers the motorist indemnity protection at a reduced cost, both because of a lowered accident rate and the increased volume of business. Representative Treadway declared that two-thirds of the drivers involved in personal injury claims are financially irresponsible, and that in Massachusetts collection of such claims had been much easier under the compulsory plan.

On the other hand, it is held that the great majority of motorists, who are careful, should not be penalized because of the recklessness of the few, that the compulsory system encourages litigation and the filing of unjust claims and that it is just as likely to increase as to limit the number of accidents because it tends to remove a feeling of personal responsibility on the part of the driver. The answer to the last objection seems obvious, as the motorist who made a bad record would be denied insurance and hence the privilege of operating a vehicle.

A more extended trial is necessary to establish the value of the plan. Alone it would seem hardly a sufficient guarantee of reasonable safety in the use of motor vehicles. It is, however, an interesting proposal and deserves serious consideration.—Kansas City Times.

A COSTLY TAX POLICY

FRED D. VIBERT, executive secretary of the Minnesota Arrowhead association, told the Duluth Rotary club how this state's policy of excessive taxation of iron properties is injuring the state itself.

There have been no new mining developments on state-owned property for twenty-one years—no explorations, no discoveries, no leases, no mining.

For fourteen years that was because there was no leasing law. But since a new leasing law was passed in 1921 there has not been a single development because high taxes made development impossible.

No doubt there are iron deposits under these state acres, but nobody dares to take the chance of finding any of them because, if he found them and took out a state lease, taxation would immediately begin to eat up his prospective profits before he ever had a chance to realize them.

But before 1907 the state leased fifty-four mines on the Mesaba. Eleven have been exhausted, seven have reverted to the state, twenty-five are now inactive and only eleven are now operating and paying royalties to the state.

That record, too, is a part of the baneful effect of destructive taxation.

The cause of the blight that has struck Minnesota's iron industry is very plain.

The remedy, which the present legislature can and should apply, is equally plain.—Duluth Herald.

A CITY BIRD SANCTUARY

ALMOST in the heart of Newark, N. J., a city of half a million inhabitants, there is an oasis for birds which bids fair to become the most popular stopping place in the town for the winged visitors, as well as for the feathered folk who make the city their home for parts or all of the year. Incidentally, provision is made for the human residents who may care to come and sit for a time to enjoy the activities of the birds.

In a big walled garden at the rear of the Newark Museum the Newark Bird club has provided a plot of considerable size with all sorts of berry bushes and small fruits, with a small grove of nut-bearing trees not far away.

Birds in a large city, and a surprising number either make their homes in the towns or are rather frequent visitors, are often hard put to it to find food, especially in winter. Then, too, many birds apparently drop in for a rest on their migrations.

The Newark refuge, which not only provides food but also a large degree of shelter in winter, will also have a large bird-bath as soon as it can be erected.

The screened pavilion, provided for persons who desire to visit the refuge, is expected to attract many persons who seem to have the habit of carrying nuts and other tid-bits for the birds. Perhaps no better place will exist in the city for feeding birds than the walled garden at the rear of the museum.—Guy M. Chase in Our Dumb Animals.

MAL CLARK

DEATH loves a shining mark. The other day Mal Clark was stricken down in young manhood and passed on beyond. To know him was to love him.

Only last Elks Memorial Day, Mal Clark as orator of the day uttered sentiments which shall linger long in our consciousness: "The canyon of death is fathomless and into its yawning jaws both old and young, the rich and poor, the good and bad are swept by fate's uncertain hand. Yet, the tide of human life flows on.

"Dying, we leave behind us dust and only memories, memories that are sweet according to our actions here on earth, memories such as we bring back today."

Mal has left precious memories with his many friends associated with him in business, in professional and school life, as a lodge member and in other capacities.

Individual birds with exceptional ability as singers are used as instructors for young birds, and are known as "companionists." These birds are imported from Germany, where some of the finest songbirds are raised.

Give 'Em Time

Some medical publicists have got along to the point where they deny there is such a thing as a "common cold" or "rheumatism." So far none has said there is no such thing as a grade crossing.—Detroit News.

B. H. S. FLOOR QUINT LOSES TO CROSBY-IRONTON, 38 TO 16

The B. H. S. quint fell before the onslaught of the Crosby-Ironton cagers Friday by a score of 38-16 for the second defeat of the season. The return of Swanson and Fuller to the ranks of the eligibles was not enough to offset the lack of a practice floor. For Brainerd, Wise and Swanson were high scorers. Wise found the loop for one basket and a free throw while Swanson got 2 field goals.

The defeat Friday was due in the most part to the weak defense and the failure of time plays. These two departments require practice on a large floor and as the latter is lacking in Brainerd no amount of coaching along other lines will remedy the matter. Since the loss of the practice quarters in the downtown store building, workouts have been carried out in the Y. M. C. A. gym but this, also, is much too small to permit practice in shooting and teamwork.

The lineup were:
Brainerd—Paine, c; Wise, lf; Swanson, rf; Haultala, lg; Gabbion, rg; Crosby-Ironton—Chupich, c; Krueger, lf; Onstrom, rf; Satovich, lg; Krueger, rg.

Next week Brainerd plays two games. The first with Little Falls on Friday and the other with St. Cloud Tech on Saturday. It is hoped that a large contingent of rooters will accompany the team. Special rates of $1 for a round trip on the bus will be in force for the Little Falls game.

The remaining games are:
Jan. 25, Little Falls.
Jan. 26, St. Cloud.
Feb. 1, Wadena.
Feb. 5, Bemidji.
Feb. 8, Pine River.

SOPHS FINISH CONTRACT WORK

Bird houses, booklets, posters, reports, bird nests, mounted specimens!!! Miss Laipple's room has been the gathering center for the results of a six-weeks contract in biology.

At least 28 unusually designed bird houses were brought in.

Between 75 and 100 booklets containing pictures and descriptions of birds, animals, or fish were produced, and 50 or more colorful health posters.

Accounts of animal observation, bird feeding and biology reading material were also handed in, and, in the same group, were descriptions of animal and bird tracks seen in the snow or mud.

Specimens were collected and mounted attractively. These, with the bird nests, were more than ten in number.

During these weeks an "A" student could earn points by conducting a class, by giving tests and correcting the papers, or by assigning topics for recitation before taking charge of a class.

Outlining daily lessons for all of the six weeks brought five points—many did this.

Those who signed up for an "A" worked for 25 or more points; a "B" required 15 points; a "C" requires 10; and outlining of the daily lessons was the least one could do to get a "D."

QUARTET ENTERTAINS AT LINCOLN P. T. A.

Many heard the B. H. S. quartet Wednesday night at the Lincoln school which was filled to capacity. When the quartet was introduced some in the crowd must have known their ability to sing because there was so much applauding.

Their first selection was entitled "Old Time Songs." They were then encased and sang "The Old Family Footbrush" and "The Three Fishes from Gallilee." Encored again, they sang "The Little Red Caboose."

We should consider ourselves very fortunate in having such a quartet and we should also feel very grateful to Mr. LaMeter, under whose direction the quartet was formed and with whom they have practiced. The quartet personnel consists of first tenor, Roland Jenkins; second tenor, Harry Goedderz, baritone, William McClenahan; bass, Guy Hawkins.

Among the other places where the boys have sung, are the Whittier P. T. A., Harrison P. T. A., Lion's club, and the Brainerd benefit play.

ON HOW TO BEGIN THE NEW SEMESTER

Announce in stentorian tones, that the exams were easy and that you should have had A's in every subject. Only the fact that the teacher "had it in for you" prevented you from being the shining light in school. After informing the world that you have been badly treated, come to class the first few days of the new semester and try to annihilate your instructor with looks that should kill anyone but an unheeding, cruel, relentless pedagogue.

If you are beginning a new subject, slouch into the class room a-la-hobo, plump yourself down with great gusto, and grievance at all the assembled multitude. Or make clever remarks that will cause your admiring friends to choke with glee. Never before have they had in their midst such a brilliant wit as you are.

If the instructor dares to ask you to refrain from amusing the class, answer him or her in your usual scintillating fashion. If he sends you from the room, leave with great dignity and incidentally slam the door behind you. Have an excellent time for two weeks and then return with the expectation that all will be forgiven.

Never study. It's a poor policy and only results in burdening your poor head. Anyway, you know everything.

NETAPPEW FROLICS AT COURT HOUSE

The Netappew Campfire group enjoyed a party in the farmer's room of the court house Saturday night.

The evening was spent in playing games. A grand march led by Alice Nolan and Agnes Davis, brought every one into the spirit of the party. The idea of being blind-folded, and then to try to put clothespins on a line was welcomed eagerly. Marlon Olson and Clara Grimstad made the record, which was 19 a minute. In dodge-ball Alice Nolan was the "shark."

The girls spent some of their time in playing the piano and jumping rope. Even Miss Haug and Miss Sundberg joined in the latter.

Later in the evening pie a la mode and cocoa were served.

The Campfire girls believe that their first social activity was a shining success!

YE EDITOR

The season immediately following the semester exams is, as a rule, a rather hectic one but this year the commotion is even greater. Above the cries of "What Commercial Classes are being offered?" and "Can I change to the first," rise the agonized groans of those prominent in Junior circles.

It seems that out of the 75 Juniors enrolled in the class organization, only 30 have paid their first semester dues of one dollar and but four have contributed the tax for the last half of the year. Remember the "prom" costs money and that money comes from your dues. Pay them now!

THE FACULTY

The Brainerdian, in order to acquaint everyone with the B. H. S. faculty, will publish two short biographies every week. We offer the first installment of "The Faculty" column for what it's worth.

Zumbrot, Minn., claims the honor of being the birthplace of Hildegard Erstad, the assistant principal of the B. H. S. Though she says her birth-ays come on April third she won't let us in on the exact number of them. Miss Tornstrom, however, says she's quite sure she saw Miss Erstad voting last November so we have an approximation anyhow.

When our teacher was four years old the Erstad's moved to Princeton where they lived until Hildegard finished high school. The principal reason she was not in any outside activities was that there weren't any. There was one exception, she was chief pitcher on a girls' tug of war team in a track meet. Her stay at Princeton was cut short by the fact that she graduated in three years, and with an honor average too. She worked her way through the U. of M. to get her B. A. degree. After she graduated she went to Albuquerque, New Mexico where she worked in an office and frequently substituted at the high school. She has traveled quite a bit having visited every state west of the Mississippi with the exception of Nevada.

She is now very busily engaged in teaching bookkeeping, trying to keep track of the records, and maintaining a silence in the city hall. It is acknowledged by everyone that she is a most efficient teacher, assistant principal, and policeman.

At every picnic and party she is the first one to join in the fun and she usually sees to it that she's among the first in the foodline. Miss Erstad will remain in the minds of all those who have graduated in the years she has been or will be here as combining all that should be in a teacher.

Mr. Frederic Eiden, or Fritz as he is sometimes fondly alluded to, is the sole male member of the history squad of the B. H. S. faculty. He admits he was born in St. Paul but refuses to divulge the date.

He romped through Mechanic Arts high school of St. Paul in three years accompanied by an average well into the 90's. He was quite active in school affairs doing the bookkeeping and ad soliciting for the "M." the school magazine. It seems he also ran the business end of the football team. It was a result of his friendship for the coach that that person asked him to take a teacher to the school prom. Freddy became so excited at the shot that he forgot whether his teacher friend's name was Fitzgibbons or Fitzpatrick. To be sure he was obliged to alternate the names throughout the whole evening, and he doesn't know her name yet.

Mr. Eiden's years at the U. of M. were paid for by his knowledge of telegraphy and of washing dishes. He succeeded in getting a B. A. but missed receiving his Master's degree by not finishing a three months course. It was during this time that he got his psychology complex, so well known to every B. H. S. student. He was undoubtedly impressed by the subject for he brings it up at least once daily in his discourses on famous people. His two years of teaching, both in the B. H. S., have been highly satisfactory to the school board by teaching history, thoroughly, and to the students by teaching it interestingly.

The Brainerdian speaks for the whole school in sincerely hoping he stays with us for some time at least.

A NEW EDITOR TO BE CHOSEN

Some time in the near future, an associate editor to assist the editor-in-chief will be chosen from the ranks of the Brainerdian staff. Whoever receives the coveted honor will be selected entirely on his merits. He or she must be dependable, must write well, must be interested in the welfare of the Brainerdian and must be willing to devote his time to the work which awaits one in his or her position.

With the selection of the associate editor, will come promotions for other members of the staff who are doing good work. The present editor-in-chief and the adviser believe that meritorious work should be recognized and in a week or two, elections and promotions will be announced.

The new member of the faculty over in the city hall is Miss Mabel Mathis of Excelsior, Minn. Miss Mathis is a graduate of Minnesota university and is taking Miss White's place in the English department.

TRI-HI GIRLS REVIEW YEAR

A few weeks ago, several of the girls of the high school organized a club by the name of Tri-Hi. It was decided that the meetings should be on Monday evenings and that the girls should have lunches bi-weekly. The objects of the club are not only entertaining but also educational and religious.

The club has two advisers, one from the high school, Miss Taylor, and another one, Mrs. Kasch. Mr. Peterson is helping them organize.

There are four officers:
President—Roberta Crawford.
Vice President—Edith Heald.
Secretary—Helen Sheets.
Treasurer—Betty Robertson.

The following are the charter members:

Roberta Crawford, Edith Heald, Helen Sheets, Betty Robertson, Dorothy Kinney, Mildred Johnson, Doris Geist, Amy Markham, Louise Clausen, Alberta Smith, Kathryn Sheets, Genevieve Jenkins, Verona Trask, Almira Christianson, Irmadelle Warner, Alice Peterson, Kathryn Albright, Margaret Holm, Amanda Holmes.

Glennadeane Mahood, Rose Gudmundson, Edythe Titus, Donna Cunningham, Arlene Hagberg, Mardele Cunningham, Hilda Dybvik.

HI-Y HEARS CRIME TALK

"There is a greater army in crime here in our own United States than has ever been in combat except in the great World war," said Mr. Sullivan, county attorney of Crow Wing county, as he addressed the Hi-Y boys at their regular weekly meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Sullivan gave a very interesting, yet staggering, account of the rising tide of crime that has been sweeping our rich and prosperous nation since the war. Statistics show that there are 350,000 criminals in our country today, 115,000 of which have at some time wilfully killed a person. Our lives and property are protected from this vast army by but 82,000 police. Many people blame the war for the great crime wave but in France, Belgium, Germany, and countries where the fighting actually took place, crime has decreased steadily since the war. The more popular belief is, however, that our country is becoming overburdened by the riches accumulated and prosperity derived in the past decade.

The Hi-Y club fully appreciates Mr. Sullivan's kindness and wishes to express its thanks for his illuminating talk.

Here and There

A general laxity of tension is observed since the examinations are over. We sincerely hope that the same spirit of peace prevails in the domestic relationships of our student body.

A great deal of comment has been passed around the school concerning the bulletin board in the court house assembly. Our one fervent hope is that no one starts putting up notices about lost overshoes.

Our Billy McClenahan read his essay "One of Ten Thousand," to the members of the Lions club last Wednesday. This essay, you know, won the $100 prize offered by the Isaac Walton League in a contest recently held. The announcement of his success came during the Christmas vacation and the Brainerdian did its best to get a scoop, it failed because the editor was out of town and Bill himself was too modest to say anything to the Dispatch editor. Anyway the prize winner was given due recognition for his splendid piece of work. That's the thing that counts.

THE MAIL BAG

Dear Editor Dick:
It looks as tho I am going to be the first to break into your "Mail Bag" column but then I always did like to be first in everything.

I just want to tell you that your Brainerdian is beginning to be a real sheet. I have watched you start out with little or nothing this year and now you are as good as any of your class. Let the good work go on. Anything I can do to help the cause along, I'll gladly do.

Ed. Note: We are pleased to have such a letter as this to start our column. Let's have a few more.

Booster.

Have you bought your Brainerdian Annual yet? Better do it now!

COMMERCIAL CLUB REVIEWS YEAR

Having been in existence but a short time, since Thanksgiving, the Commercial club under the leadership of Miss Erstad, Miss Lord, and Miss Ruthe, is now the largest club in the high school, with a roll call of 90 members.

The officers, president, Edith Heald; vice president, Ardelle Persson; secretary, Ellen Burglund, and treasurer, Margaret Vadnais, were selected by the club to work out a schedule for the year, which is to include both social and educational features.

The requirements for membership consist of at least two commercial subjects carried now or having been carried and no conditions or failures. One has the choice of the commercial subject, shorthand, typewriting, and bookkeeping, with the subjects starting this half which consist of commercial law, commercial geography, and advanced business training.

Closing the old year in a happy mood the Commercial club had a Christmas party, and to show their interest in the club sixty of the members were present. Many games were played, the leading one of which was pool. After the games first prize was awarded to Margaret Holm. Refreshments were served and were accepted willingly after such a strenuous evening of games. After refreshments everybody went home happy and somewhat tired and many with broken fingernails and scraped knuckles. The party proved a very great success.

There will be a meeting tomorrow night, Wednesday, January 23, after school in the city hall. All members will please be present.

ALLAN MCKAY FINISHES FIRST IN ANNUAL RACE

The second annual algebra race at B. H. S. closed Friday, Jan. 18, with Allan McKay of the first year coming through as the winner.

The race took place in all of Mr. Johnson's algebra classes and was conducted along the lines of an automobile race, each student covering a mile for every point he earned. A possible total of 75 points could be earned in daily work but some of the more ambitious entered into extra contracts and thereby progressed several miles further.

Allan McKay of the first year algebra class carried off first honors with 98 points.

Selma Nygaard with 85 points tops the Higher Algebra section. Mr. Johnson stated that this method is most satisfactory and keeps the most listless students interested to the end.

The yearly W. C. T. U. essay contests are soon to be started. Miss Schow's classes have already completed theirs. We are glad to announce that the contests have come at the psychological moment as Billy Mac reports that he is all out of spending money.

Three weeks from tonight!!! Be sure to reserve the evening of February 12th. There is going to be something you won't want to miss. Watch the Brainerdian columns for further announcements.

EXCHANGE

An oral spelling contest was held by the pupils in shorthand at the Cathedral high school in St. Cloud.

The pupils of the Appleton high school journalism classes may see how a real newspaper is made. There will be three reels, prepared by the New York Times, shown to them in the near future.

The New Yorker, New York Mills, deserves words of praise for its excellent appearance and content.

Miss O'Brien says that when there is nothing more to be said someone always says it.

Ross O. says they certainly work wonders by these new methods of reducing. He saw in the paper that an English lady lost 2,000 pounds.

Tuesday evening, February 12th! Senior performers will appear in the presentation of "The Youngest," a lively three-act comedy—modern, peppy, bound to hold your interest. Don't miss it!

COMPULSORY INSURANCE FOR DRIVERS

ONE of the means advanced for promotion of street and highway safety is compulsory liability insurance for motorists. The idea is fairly new and has been given a limited trial. Yet it seems to be attracting increased attention and its merits may be further tested. In advocating the plan for the District of Columbia Representative Treadway of Massachusetts declared it had been in operation 18 months in Massachusetts, and according to officials of that state, it was brought out at the hearing on the bill, the plan has been working satisfactorily.

It is argued that the system offers protection for victims of traffic accidents or members of their families, in case of fatalities; that it tends to weed out the reckless and incompetent drivers, who are denied insurance, and that it offers the motorist indemnity protection at a reduced cost, both because of a lowered accident rate and the increased volume of business. Representative Treadway declared that two-thirds of the drivers involved in personal injury claims are financially irresponsible, and that in Massachusetts collection of such claims had been much easier under the compulsory plan.

On the other hand, it is held that the great majority of motorists, who are careful, should not be penalized because of the recklessness of the few, that the compulsory system encourages litigation and the filing of unjust claims and that it is just as likely to increase as to limit the number of accidents because it tends to remove a feeling of personal responsibility on the part of the driver. The answer to the last objection seems obvious, as the motorist who made a bad record would be denied insurance and hence the privilege of operating a vehicle.

A more extended trial is necessary to establish the value of the plan. Alone it would seem hardly a sufficient guarantee of reasonable safety in the use of motor vehicles. It is, however, an interesting proposal and deserves serious consideration.—Kansas City Times.

A COSTLY TAX POLICY

FRED D. VIBERT, executive secretary of the Minnesota Arrowhead association, told the Duluth Rotary club how this state's policy of excessive taxation of iron properties is injuring the state itself.

There have been no new mining developments on state-owned property for twenty-one years—no explorations, no discoveries, no leases, no mining.

For fourteen years that was because there was no leasing law. But since a new leasing law was passed in 1921 there has not been a single development because high taxes made development impossible.

No doubt there are iron deposits under these state acres, but nobody dares to take the chance of finding any of them because, if he found them and took out a state lease, taxation would immediately begin to eat up his prospective profits before he ever had a chance to realize them.

But before 1907 the state leased fifty-four mines on the Mesaba. Eleven have been exhausted, seven have reverted to the state, twenty-five are now inactive and only eleven are now operating and paying royalties to the state.

That record, too, is a part of the baneful effect of destructive taxation.

The cause of the blight that has struck Minnesota's iron industry is very plain.

The remedy, which the present legislature can and should apply, is equally plain.—Duluth Herald.

A CITY BIRD SANCTUARY

ALMOST in the heart of Newark, N. J., a city of half a million inhabitants, there is an oasis for birds which bids fair to become the most popular stopping place in the town for the winged visitors, as well as for the feathered folk who make the city their home for parts or all of the year. Incidentally, provision is made for the human residents who may care to come and sit for a time to enjoy the activities of the birds.

In a big walled garden at the rear of the Newark Museum the Newark Bird club has provided a plot of considerable size with all sorts of berry bushes and small fruits, with a small grove of nut-bearing trees not far away.

Birds in a large city, and a surprising number either make their homes in the towns or are rather frequent visitors, are often hard put to it to find food, especially in winter. Then, too, many birds apparently drop in for a rest on their migrations.

The Newark refuge, which not only provides food but also a large degree of shelter in winter, will also have a large bird-bath as soon as it can be erected.

The screened pavilion, provided for persons who desire to visit the refuge, is expected to attract many persons who seem to have the habit of carrying nuts and other tid-bits for the birds. Perhaps no better place will exist in the city for feeding birds than the walled garden at the rear of the museum.—Guy M. Chase in Our Dumb Animals.

MAL CLARK

DEATH loves a shining mark. The other day Mal Clark was stricken down in young manhood and passed on beyond. To know him was to love him.

Only last Elks Memorial Day, Mal Clark as orator of the day uttered sentiments which shall linger long in our consciousness: "The canyon of death is fathomless and into its yawning jaws both old and young, the rich and poor, the good and bad are swept by fate's uncertain hand. Yet, the tide of human life flows on.

"Dying, we leave behind us dust and only memories, memories that are sweet according to our actions here on earth, memories such as we bring back today."

Mal has left precious memories with his many friends associated with him in business, in professional and school life, as a lodge member and in other capacities.

Bird Singing-Masters

Individual birds with exceptional ability as singers are used as instructors for young birds, and are known as "companions." These birds are imported from Germany, where some of the finest canary birds are raised.

Some medical publicists have got along to the point where they deny there is such a thing as a "common cold" or "rheumatism." So far none has said there is no such thing as a grade crossing.—Detroit News.

B. H. S. FLOOR QUINT LOSES TO CROSBY-IRONTON, 38 TO 16

The B. H. S. quint fell before the onslaught of the Crosby-Ironton cagers Friday by a score of 38-16 for the second defeat of the season. The return of Swanson and Fuller to the ranks of the eligibles was not enough to offset the lack of a practice floor. For Brainerd, Wise and Swanson were high scorers. Wise found the loop for one basket and a free throw while Swanson got 2 field goals.

The defeat Friday was due in the most part to the weak defense and the failure of time plays. These two departments require practice on a large floor and as the latter is lacking in Brainerd no amount of coaching along other lines will remedy the matter. Since the loss of the practice quarters in the downtown store building, workouts have been carried out in the Y. M. C. Her stay at Princeton was cut short by the fact that she graduated in three years, and with an honor average too. She worked her way through the U. of M. to get her B. A. degree. After she graduated she went to Albuquerque, New Mexico where she worked in an office and frequently substituted at the high school. She has traveled quite a bit having visited every state west of the Mississippi with the exception of Nevada.

She is now very busily engaged in teaching bookkeeping, trying to keep track of the records, and maintaining a silence in the city hall. It is acknowledged by everyone that she is a most efficient teacher, assistant principal, and policewoman.

At every picnic and party she is the first one to join in the fun and she usually seems to it that she's among the first in the headline.

Miss Erstad will remain in the minds of all those who have graduated in the years she has been or will be here as combining all that should be in a teacher.

Mr. Frederic Eiden, or Fritz as he is sometimes fondly alluded to, is the sole male member of the history squad of the B. H. S. faculty. He admits he was born in St. Paul but refuses to divulge the date.

He romped through Mechanic Arts high school of St. Paul in three years accompanied by an average well into the 90's. He was quite active in school affairs doing the bookkeeping and ad soliciting for the "M." the school magazine. It seems he also ran the business end of the football team. It was a result of his friendship for the coach that that person asked him to take a teacher to the school prom. Freddy became so excited at the shot that he forgot whether his teacher friend's name was Fitzgibbons or Fitzpatrick. To be sure he was obliged to alternate the names throughout the whole evening, and he doesn't know her name yet.

Mr. Eiden's years at the U. of M. were paid for by his knowledge of telegraphy and of washing dishes. He succeeded in getting a B. A. but missed receiving his Master's degree by not finishing a three months course. It was during this time that he got his psychology complex, so well known to every B. H. S. student. He was undoubtedly impressed by the subject for he brings it up at least once daily in his discourses on famous people. His two years of teaching, both in the B. H. S., have been highly satisfactory to the school board by teaching history, thoroughly, and to the students by teaching it interestingly.

The Brainerdian speaks for the whole school in sincerely hoping he stays with us for some time at least.

A NEW EDITOR TO BE CHOSEN

Some time in the near future, an associate editor to assist the editor-in-chief will be chosen from the ranks of the Brainerdian staff. Whoever receives the coveted honor will be selected entirely on his merits. He or she must be dependable, must write well, must be interested in the welfare of the Brainerdian and must be willing to devote his time to the work which awaits one in his or her position.

With the selection of the associate editor, will come promotions for other members of the staff who are doing good work. The present editor-in-chief and the adviser believe that meritorious work should be recognized and in a week or two, elections and promotions will be announced.

The new member of the faculty, over in the city hall is Miss Mabel Mathis of Excelsior, Minn. Miss Mathis is a graduate of Minnesota university and is taking Miss White's place in the English department.

TRI-HI GIRLS

REVIEW YEAR

A few weeks ago, several of the girls of the high school organized a club by the name of Tri-Hi. It was decided that the meetings should be on Monday evenings and that the girls should have lunches bi-weekly. The objects of the club are not only entertaining but also educational and religious.

The club has two advisers, one from the high school, Miss Taylor, and another one, Mrs. Kasch. Mr. Peterson is helping them organize.

There are four officers:

President—Roberta Crawford.
Vice President—Edith Heald.
Secretary—Helen Sheets.
Treasurer—Betty Robertson.

The following are the charter members:
Roberta Crawford, Edith Heald, Helen Sheets, Betty Robertson, Dorothy Kinney, Mildred Johnson, Doris Geist, Amy Markham, Louise Clausen, Alberta Smith, Kathryn Sheets, Genevieve Jenkins, Verona Trask, Almira Christianson, Imadelle Warner, Alice Peterson, Kathryn Albright, Margaret Holm, Amanda Holmes.

Glennadeane Mahood, Rose Gudmundson, Edythe Titus, Donna Cunningham, Arlene Hagberg, Mardele Cunningham, Hilda Dybvik.

HI-Y HEARS

CRIME TALK

"There is a greater army in crime here in our own United States than has ever been in combat except in the great World War," said Mr. Sullivan, county attorney of Crow Wing county, as he addressed the Hi-Y boys at their regular weekly meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Sullivan gave a very interesting, yet staggering, account of the rising tide of crime that has been sweeping our rich and prosperous nation since the war. Statistics show that there are 350,000 criminals in our country today, 115,000 of which have at some time willfully killed a person. Our lives and property are protected from this vast army by but 82,000 police. Many people blame the war for the great crime wave but in France, Belgium, Germany, and countries where the fighting actually took place, crime has decreased steadily since the war. The more popular belief is, however, that our country is becoming overburdened by the riches accumulated and prosperity derived in the past decade.

The Hi-Y club fully appreciates Mr. Sullivan's kindness and wishes to express its thanks for his illuminating talk.

Here and There

A general laxity of tension is observed since the examinations are over. We sincerely hope that the same spirit of peace prevails in the domestic relationships of our student body.

A great deal of comment has been passed around the school concerning the bulletin board in the court house assembly. Our one fervent hope is that no one starts putting up notices about lost overshoes.

Our Billy McClenahan read his essay "One of Ten Thousand," to the members of the Lions club last Wednesday. This essay, you know, won the $100 prize offered by the Isaac Walton League in a contest recently held. The announcement of his success came during the Christmas vacation and the Brainerdian did its best to get a scoop, it failed because the editor was out of town and Bill himself was too modest to say anything to the Dispatch editor. Anyway the prize winner was given due recognition for his splendid piece of work. That's the thing that counts.

THE MAIL BAG

Dear Editor Dick:

It looks as tho I am going to be the first to break into your "Mail Bag" column but then I always did like to be first in everything.

I just want to tell you that your Brainerdian is beginning to be a real sheet. I have watched you start out with little or nothing this year and now you are as good as any of your class. Let the good work go on. Anything I can do to help the cause along, I'll gladly do.

Ed. Note: We are pleased to have such a letter as this to start our column. Let's have a few more.

COMMERCIAL CLUB REVIEWS YEAR

Having been in existence but a short time, since Thanksgiving, the Commercial club under the leadership of Miss Erstad, Miss Lord, and Miss Ruthe, is now the largest club in the high school, with a roll call of 90 members.

The officers, president, Edith Heald; vice president, Ardelle Persson; secretary, Ellen Burglund, and treasurer, Margaret Vadnais, were selected by the club to work out a schedule for the year, which is to include both social and educational features.

The requirements for membership consist of at least two commercial subjects carried now or having been carried and no conditions or failures. One has the choice of the commercial subject, shorthand, typewriting, and bookkeeping, with the subjects starting this half which consist of commercial law, commercial geography, and advanced business training.

Closing the old year in a happy mood the Commercial club had a Christmas party, and to show their interest in the club sixty of the members were present. Many games were played, the leading one of which was pool. After the games first prize was awarded to Margaret Holm. Refreshments were served and were accepted willingly after such a strenuous evening of games. After refreshments everybody went home happy and somewhat tired and many with broken fingernails and scraped knuckles. The party proved a very great success.

There will be a meeting tomorrow night, Wednesday, January 23, after school in the city hall. All members will please be present.

ALLAN MCKAY FINISHES FIRST IN ANNUAL RACE

The second annual algebra race at B. H. S. closed Friday, Jan. 18, with Allan McKay of the first year coming through as the winner.

The race took place in all of Mr. Johnson's algebra classes and was conducted along the lines of an automobile race, each student covering a mile for every point he earned. A possible total of 75 points could be earned in daily work but some of the more ambitious entered into extra contracts and thereby progressed several miles further.

Allan McKay of the first year algebra class carried off first honors with 98 points.

Selma Nygaard with 85 points tops the Higher Algebra section. Mr. Johnson stated that this method is most satisfactory and keeps the most listless students interested to the end.

The yearly W. C. T. U. essay contests are soon to be started. Miss Schow's classes have already completed theirs. We are glad to announce that the contests have come at the psychological moment as Billy Mac reports that he is all out of spending money.

Three weeks from tonight!!! Be sure to reserve the evening of February 12th. There is going to be something you won't want to miss. Watch the Brainerdian columns for further announcements.

EXCHANGE

An oral spelling contest was held by the pupils in shorthand at the Cathedral high school in St. Cloud.

COUNCIL PROPOSES MAJOR 1929 PROGRAM

Tentative Plans Discussed for Relief of Sewer Situation in Business District

PAVING OF CEMETERY HILL
Committee to Seek Establishment of Municipally Owned Airport

Three projects which may become major ones on the city council program this year were discussed by the aldermen at last evening's council meeting.

Tentative plans were discussed on the following proposed matters which are of utmost importance to the city as a whole.

Relief of the sewer situation in downtown sections where most needed by the construction of a storm sewer.

Relief of traffic at Cemetery Hill by the construction of a paved highway.

The establishment of a municipal airport for the city of Brainerd.

All three proposed projects have been matters of discussion and consideration of the council for the past year.

The sewer matter came to the front again last evening at the request of Con O'Brien, Brainerd business man who stated that he planned to construct a $75,000 building on the southwest corner of Laurel street and Broadway for occupancy of Montgomery-Ward.

Mr. O'Brien was of the opinion that a sewer could be constructed to relieve the situation at a cost of $30,000.

Alderman Martin Anderson reviewed former plans he had advanced for relief of the sewer situation, stating that in his opinion the proposed work would not exceed the cost of $60,000.

All members of the council were of the same mind that relief of the downtown sewer condition was necessary.

"There is not a store on Laurel street but what is flooded after a rain," said Alderman W. J. Hall.

"Before action is taken we should determine how the assessment could be handled," stated Alderman V. F. Anderson.

On motion of Aldermen Martin Anderson and W. J. Hall the city engineer, city attorney and street committee were instructed to look into the advisability of putting in a storm sewer in the districts where the sewer will be most needed and that they present plans how the cost will be distributed at the next meeting of the council.

Mr. O'Brien's request to move a building at the rear of the Pierce block to the rear of his store building on Broadway was granted.

He stated that work at the site of the Pierce block would be started the first of next month. Mr. O'Brien stated that as yet he had not awarded contracts for the work.

Cemetery Hill Action
City Engineer R. T. Campbell presented a report as to the cost and proposed plans for paving Cemetery Hill. He estimated the cost of paving Fir street from 9th street to Evergreen avenue continuing on the same to the southwest gate of the cemetery at $13,000 to $14,000.

Mr. Campbell estimated that 1500 feet would be paved, the width of the street to be 18 to 35 feet.

G. W. Chadbourne, secretary-treasurer of the Evergreen Cemetery association stated that the association was prepared to assist the city in the paving cost.

On motion of Aldermen Martin Anderson and W. J. Hall, City Attorney D. H. Fullerton and City Engineer Campbell were instructed to determine how the cost of the paving could be assessed, interview the cemetery association and owners of the property abutting the streets in question, with the object in mind of presenting the proposed construction to the voters at the spring election.

Alderman Hall directed attention of the council to the necessity of a municipally owned airport in Brainerd, suggesting that financial assistance be sought from the county commissioners for the purchase of the purchase of a site for an airport in the city.

Mayor F. E. Little, chairman of the airport committee stated that the committee would conduct the work and would interview the commissioners at an early date.

"HIGH COST OF BORROWED CLOTHES"

Unusual Topic of Evangelist Leslie R. Hall at Baptist Church

IN STARTLING STATEMENTS

Church, Says Speaker, Should be Real Conductor of Power

Preaching last evening at the First Baptist church on the subject "The High Cost of Borrowed Clothes," Evangelist Leslie R. Hall made a number of interesting and startling statements. Among other things that he said were these, "The power of God for transforming lives and energizing the church is as great as it ever was, but the medium of its expression is faulty. The church, which is the channel through which the divine power is mediated, has become a blocked channel, and instead of being a conductor of power, it has too many times been a non-conductor."

Speaking on the worldly amusements of professing Christians he said, "We must be willing to gauge our actions and lives according to its effect upon our weaker brethren, as well as to our knowledge of the will of God. In these days when the theatres, the dance halls, and the card parties are proving a trap door to hell for so many, Christians should watch carefully their walk and their lives lest they cause one of the Lord's little ones to stumble. If we should be the cause of a soul to be damned by our example, and we ourselves should be saved, that soul could stand on the bulwarks of hell and accuse heaven of its justice."

A great baptismal service will be held at the church tonight. The evangelist will speak on the subject, "Buried with Christ in Baptism." The beauty of the baptismal ordinance when practised in the New Testament way should attract many to the service. All are invited to attend.

Committee Thanks Contributors and Urges All Others to Join in Benefit Work

$630.25 ALREADY RAISED

Contributions Should be Mailed or Delivered to Brainerd Daily Dispatch

Members of the committee of the St. Joseph's Hospital Radio Fund today desired to express thanks to all those who have to date contributed to the fund and to urge others to assist in the raising of money to purchase a radio system for the hospital that will benefit all patients without extra charge.

To date all contributions have been voluntary and it is hoped that solicitation will not be deemed necessary.

So far $630.25 has been raised which is not quite half the goal set.

All contributions should be mailed or delivered to the Brainerd Daily Dispatch and they will be promptly recognized in a column designated for that purpose.

The radio service at the hospital will prove a benefit to all patients at the hospital for it is the plan to purchase a master set which will be operated from the hospital office and to install receiving sets in each room in the hospital.

JURY FINDS MAN GUILTY OF MURDER

Bootlegger Who Furnished Liquor to Defendant Also Receives Punishment

JUDGE BLAMES LIQUOR

Trial Reveals Circumstances of Death of Earl Wright; Many See Play

The play, "Who Killed Earl Wright" at the Presbyterian church last evening, given by David Laughlin McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Minnesota and W. C. A. Wallar, editor of the Minnesota edition of the "American Issue," and supported by twenty-four local people from five local churches, was given to a packed house. It was estimated that 600 people were in attendance, and a large number were turned away.

The play, which showed the evils of drink, was taken from an actual case in an Iowa court. Clayton Hesse played the part of Frank Lloyd who was on trial for the murder of Earl Wright, his best friend, in a drunken brawl. The fight was supposed to have taken place at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. French, Mr. French having purchased the liquor from a bootlegger, given it to the boys, and later taking them to his home. Mrs. French, played by Mrs. W. A. Erickson, was called as a witness, and gave a clear account of the fight. Among other things, she said "I have been trying to find out where my husband got his liquor and I had officers working on the job, but nothing was ever done."

Counsel for the defense, D. L. McBride, brought out the fact that Frank Lloyd was under the influence of liquor and consequently not responsible. County Attorney W. C. A. Wallar showed that even though under the influence of liquor, he was responsible for his acts and should pay the penalty, even though the bootlegger was jointly responsible.

"When I can have the support of the citizens, the juries, the peace officers and the court, I will put these bootleggers out of business," he stated.

The jury brought in a verdict of guilty also stating that the bootlegger was equally guilty and should also be punished. The judge (Rev. N. P. Olmsted), then pronounced sen-

WINTER'S GLORY

Snowflakes are stars from heaven. They float down one by one. See how they twinkle and sparkle. And glint beneath the sun.

Whirling and twirling down they glide

From their home up in the sky. Flashing and dancing side by side. Toward the earth they fly.

Down from the clouds they come to clothe

The earth in a blanket of white. Flowers and trees, cities and towns. Gently they lull these to sleep at night.

Each little flake has a mission to do. Some cover the sleeping flowers. Some brighten lonesome alleys and yards.

Some sparkle on high roofs and towers.

Each star is so small, one would hardly think

It could do much, but all together. Like an army they hold the earth in repose

Until the summer weather.

Committee Thanks Contributors and Urges All Others to Join in Benefit Work

$630.25 ALREADY RAISED

Contributions Should be Mailed or Delivered to Brainerd Daily Dispatch

Members of the committee of the St. Joseph's Hospital Radio Fund today desired to express thanks to all those who have to date contributed to the fund and to urge others to assist in the raising of money to purchase a radio system for the hospital that will benefit all patients without extra charge.

To date all contributions have been voluntary and it is hoped that solicitation will not be deemed necessary.

So far $630.25 has been raised which is not quite half the goal set. All contributions should be mailed or delivered to the Brainerd Daily Dispatch and they will be promptly recognized in a column designated for that purpose.

The radio service at the hospital will prove a benefit to all patients at the hospital for it is the plan to purchase a master set which will be operated from the hospital office and to install receiving sets in each room in the hospital.

JUDGE BLAMES LIQUOR

Trial Reveals Circumstances of Death of Earl Wright; Many See Play

The play, "Who Killed Earl Wright" at the Presbyterian church last evening, given by David Laughlin McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Minnesota and W. C. A. Wallar, editor of the Minnesota edition of the "American Issue," and supported by twenty-four local people from five local churches, was given to a packed house. It was estimated that 600 people were in attendance, and a large number were turned away.

The play, which showed the evils of drink, was taken from an actual case in an Iowa court. Clayton Hess played the part of Frank Lloyd who was on trial for the murder of Earl Wright, his best friend, in a drunken brawl. The fight was supposed to have taken place at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. French. Mr. French having purchased the liquor from a bootlegger, given it to his boys, and later taking them to his home. Mrs. French, played by Mrs. W. A. Erickson, was called as a witness, and gave a clear account of the fight. Among other things, she said "I have been trying to find out where my husband got his liquor and I had officers working on the job, but nothing was ever done."

Counsel for the defense, D. L. McBride, brought out the fact that Frank Lloyd was under the influence of liquor and consequently not responsible. County Attorney W. C. A. Wallar showed that even though under the influence of liquor, he was responsible for his acts and should pay the penalty, even though the bootlegger was jointly responsible.

"When I can have the support of the citizens, the juries, the peace officers and the court, I will put these bootleggers out of business," he stated. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty also stating that the bootlegger was equally guilty and should also be punished. The judge (Rev. N. P. Olmsted), then pronounced sentence upon Frank Lloyd and also the bootlegger Tony, giving him the extent under the law.

tence upon Frank Lloyd and also the bootlegger Tony, giving him the extent under the law.

This is the first time anything like this has been put on in Brainerd, and was enthusiastically received by the audience.

WINTER'S GLORY

Snowflakes are stars from heaven. They float down one by one. See how they twinkle and sparkle. And glint beneath the sun.

Whirling and twirling down they glide. From their home up in the sky. Flashing and dandling side by side. Toward the earth they fly.

Down from the clouds they come to clothe. The earth in a blanket of white. Flowers and trees, cities and towns. Gently they lull these to sleep at night.

Each little flake has a mission to do. Some cover the sleeping flowers. Some brighten lonesome alleys and yards. Some sparkle on high roofs and towers.

Each star is so small, one would hardly think. It could do much, but all together. Like an army they hold the earth in repose. Until the summer weather.

NUTTING SCORES 19 POINTS; TEAM GOES TO BOVEY

COMBINATION OF WHITLOCK, MARSHALL, NUTTING NETTED CHANCES FOR SHOTS

LOCALS SHOW FINE BASKETBALL ABILITY IN FIRST GAME OF WEEK'S ROAD TOUR

The Brainerd American Legion cagers were on their way to Bovey today, where they meet Bovey tonight after trimming Aitkin Co. B last evening to the count of 38 to 24, in the first of a group of six games on a week's tour.

Nutting's sensational basket shooting was the feature of the game last evening. He found the loop for eight field goals and three free throws. Many of his chances came from close in through the combined passing work of Whitlock and Marshall. Heikkinen and DeRoche held down the defense work in fine style. Ladd had an off night but he is expected to go great guns in tonight's battle. Marshall scored four field goals.

Aitkin had stars in Rogers and G. Smith. The team played well in the first half but weakened in the last half.

The game was fast but developed into roughness in the closing minutes of play as two men were taken out on fouls. A total of 24 fouls were called in the game, nine being called on Brainerd and 15 on Aitkin.

SEEK RETURN MATCH, LEWIS AND SONNENBERG

New York, Jan. 22.—(U.P.)—Negotiations were under way today for a return match between Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Gus Sonnenberg, who recently won the title, as a result of Lewis' victory over Renato Gardini, Italian contender.

Making his first appearance in New York in five years, Lewis pinned the Italian with a rushing series of headlocks in 44 minutes, 41 seconds. A crowd of 6,000 witnessed the match in Madison Square Garden.

WISCONSIN IN FAVORED SPOT IN CONFERENCE

AS RESULT OF ITS 31 TO 26 VICTORY OVER PURDUE TEAM

BADGERS USED A DEFENSE DESIGNED TO STOP MURPHY, CENTER

By BERT DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Wisconsin unexpectedly went into a favored position in the western conference basketball race today as a result of a 31-26 victory over Purdue, the team which until last night had appeared to be the best.

The Badgers, using a defense designed especially to stop Murphy, Purdue center, outplayed the Boilermakers. Wisconsin sank 13 of 15 free throws as a material aid to the victory.

In previous games, Purdue had won because no team had succeeded in halting Murphy, who piled up 76 points in his first five games. The Purdue center had scored almost at will on short shots because of his great height.

But in meeting Wisconsin last night, Murphy found a team which was tall enough to compete with him and the Badgers concentrated their defense in keeping the ball out of the hands of the Purdue center.

The Wisconsin victory allowed Michigan to assume undisputed possession of first place in the conference standings. Until last night, Purdue was first with five games won and none lost but Michigan has won four and lost none.

As a result Purdue and Wisconsin go into a tie for second place in the standings, each with five won and one lost.

Wisconsin lost only to the undefeated Michigan team, and the early season "dark horse" claims of the Badgers seem now to have been well founded.

In the other game last night, Indiana experienced little trouble winning from Minnesota, 41-22. The Gophers were outclassed completely.

Because of mid-year examinations, activities in the conference will be halted almost completely during the next two weeks.

Only two conference games will be played during that time.

The much defeated Chicago team plays in both. The Maroons go to Columbus to meet Ohio next Saturday and play Iowa in Chicago the following Saturday.

AMATEUR AFFAIRS OF THE RUNNER ARE PROBED

FINNISH DISTANCE RUNNER CONTINUES HIS WORK-OUTS

EFFORTS TO LEARN IF INDUCEMENTS WERE OFFERED FOR ENTRY SWITCH

New York, Jan. 22.—(U.P.)—The amateur affairs of Paavo Nurmi were under investigation today.

The outcome of charges hurled at the peerless Finnish distance runner by Jack Harris, secretary of the American athletic committee, sponsoring an indoor track meet here Saturday night, is that Nurmi has been called to appear before the registration committee of the metropolitan A. A. U. tomorrow.

Evidence was being sought by the American games officials to show that Nurmi had virtually assured them that he would compete in the American meet only to come to a "sudden decision" to switch his entry to the K. of C. games at Boston.

Today while others were all excited about the charges made against him, Nurmi slipped off to a park on the edge of the city for his customary daily workout over hills and dales.

Every effort will be made to learn if any inducements were offered Nurmi to switch his entry, and if so, by whom. Nurmi, however, has a way all of his own of turning away all questioners with wrath in their hearts.

"I no spik English," he declares and promptly goes into seclusion.

TO BRING ABOUT HARMONY IN AMATEUR SPORTS

New York, Jan. 22.—(U.P.)—Steps to bring about harmony between the Amateur Athletic union and the National Collegiate Athletic association have been taken by General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the latter organization.

In two letters received from Pierce by Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., the former asked the latter to appoint committees to confer with similar committees of the N. C. A. A. to decide two problems.

The problems are the supervision of the registration requirements of intercollegiate athletes and the matter of the selection of the Olympic team. Ferris referred the communications to Avery Brundage, of Chicago, president of the A. A. U.

Constipation! How to Keep Bowels Regular

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
AT THE AGE OF 83

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated men women, children, and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.
While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, biliousness, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.
In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

LEGION BOYS TAKE AITKIN TO CAMP, 38-24

NUTTING SCORES 19 POINTS; TEAM GOES TO BOVEY

COMBINATION OF WHITLOCK, MARSHALL, NUTTING NETTED CHANCES FOR SHOTS

LOCALS SHOW FINE BASKETBALL ABILITY IN FIRST GAME OF WEEK'S ROAD TOUR

The Brainerd American Legion cagers were on their way to Bovey today, where they meet Bovey tonight after trimming Aitkin Co. B last evening to the count of 38 to 24, in the first of a group of six games on a week's tour.

Nutting's sensational basket shooting was the feature of the game last evening. He found the hoop for eight field goals and three free throws. Many of his chances came from close in through the combined passing work of Whitlock and Marshall. Heikkinen and DeRocher held down the defense work in fine style. Ladd had an off night but he is expected to go great guns in tonight's battle. Marshall scored four field goals.

Aitkin had stars in Rogers and G. Smith. The team played well in the first half but weakened in the last half.

The game was fast but developed into roughness in the closing minutes of play as two men were taken out on fouls. A total of 24 fouls were called in the game, nine being called on Brainerd and 15 on Aitkin. The box score follows:

SEEK RETURN MATCH, LEWIS AND SONNENBERG

New York, Jan. 22.—(U.P.)—Negotiations were under way today for a return match between Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Gus Sonnenberg, who recently won the title, as a result of Lewis' victory over Renato Gardini, Italian contender.

Making his first appearance in New York in five years, Lewis pinned the Italian with a rushing series of headlocks in 44 minutes, 41 seconds. A crowd of 6,000 witnessed the match in Madison Square Garden.

WISCONSIN IN FAVORED SPOT IN CONFERENCE

AS RESULT OF ITS 31 TO 26 VICTORY OVER PURDUE TEAM

BADGERS USED A DEFENSE DESIGNED TO STOP MURPHY, CENTER

By BERT DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Wisconsin unexpectedly went into a favored position in the western conference basketball race today as a result of a 31-26 victory over Purdue, the team which until last night had appeared to be the best.

The Badgers, using a defense designed especially to stop Murphy, Purdue center, outplayed the Boilermakers. Wisconsin sank 13 of 15 free throws as a material aid to the victory.

In previous games, Purdue had won because no team had succeeded in halting Murphy, who piled up 76 points in his first five games. The Purdue center had scored almost all will on short shots because of his great height.

But in meeting Wisconsin last night, Murphy found a team which was tall enough to compete with him and the Badgers concentrated their defense in keeping the ball out of the hands of the Purdue center.

The Wisconsin victory allowed Michigan to assume undisputed possession of first place in the conference standings. Until last night, Purdue was first with five games won and none lost but Michigan has won four and lost none.

As a result Purdue and Wisconsin go into a tie for second place in the standings, each with five won and one lost.

Wisconsin lost only to the undefeated Michigan team, and the early season "dark horse" claims of the Badgers seem now to have been well founded.

In the other game last night, Indiana experienced little trouble winning from Minnesota, 41-22. The Gophers were outclassed completely. Because of mid-year examinations, activities in the conference will be halted almost completely during the next two weeks.

Only two conference games will be played during that time.

The much defeated Chicago team plays in both. The Maroons go to Columbus to meet Ohio next Saturday and play Iowa in Chicago the following Saturday.

AMATEUR AFFAIRS OF THE RUNNER ARE PROBED

FINNISH DISTANCE RUNNER CONTINUES HIS WORK-OUTS

EFFORTS TO LEARN IF INDUCEMENTS WERE OFFERED FOR ENTRY SWITCH

New York, Jan. 22.—(U.P.)—The amateur affairs of Paavo Nurmi were under investigation today.

The outcome of charges hurled at the peerless Finnish distance runner by Jack Harris, secretary of the Masonic athletic committee, sponsoring an indoor track meet here Saturday night, is that Nurmi has been called to appear before the registration committee of the metropolitan A. A. U. tomorrow.

Evidence was being sought by the Masonic games officials to show that Nurmi had virtually assured them that he would compete in the Masonic meet only to come to a "sudden decision" to switch his entry to the K. of C. games at Boston.

Today while others were all excited about the charges made against him, Nurmi slipped off to a park on the edge of the city for his customary daily workout over hills and dunes.

Every effort will be made to learn if any inducements were offered Nurmi to switch his entry, and if so, by whom. Nurmi, however, has a way all of his own of turning away all questioners with wrath in their hearts.

"I no spik English," he declares and promptly goes into seclusion.

TO BRING ABOUT HARMONY IN AMATEUR SPORTS

New York, Jan. 22.—(U.P.)—Steps to bring about harmony between the Amateur Athletic union and the National Collegiate Athletic association have been taken by General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the latter organization.

In two letters received from Pierce by Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., the former asked the latter to appoint committees to confer with similar committees of the N. C. A. A. to decide two problems.

The problems are the supervision of the registration requirements of intercollegiate athletes and the matter of the selection of the Olympic team. Ferris referred the communications to Avery Brundage, of Chicago, president of the A. A. U.
